

TV Recycling Report Card Grading For: Sony

The Talk: "At Sony, we support the recycling of our products with the same respect as we have when creating them."¹

The Walk: On September 15, 2007, Sony established the first national takeback recycling program for TVs and other electronics. Sony has expanded the number of drop-off facilities and has held 246 recycling events in 2008, with 9 more scheduled. In 2007, Sony made explicit commitments to provide responsible recycling and set goals to have a recycling facility within 20 miles of 95% of all Americans, but these commitments are not visible on Sony's recycling web pages.

Category	Possible Points	Points Given	Details
Scope of US takeback recycling program	38	33
Offers free convenient national takeback recycling for their branded TVs for individual consumers	25	21	Sony has a national program, with collections sites across the country. But many more sites are needed before this can be a "convenient" program.
Offers free national takeback recycling for a larger scope of their branded products in addition to TVs	8	8	Sony takes back all their electronic products.
Offers free national takeback recycling for other customers – not just individual consumers	3	2	Consumers may drop off up to 5 Sony-branded items at a time. ²
